○ Quarterly Average

LLPs are significantly lower than in 1H14

Outlook

- The actions undertaken in the first half and the expected progressive improvement in the macroeconomic environment should allow a further increase in new grants of loans in the second half of the year in order to counter the strong competitive pressure on pricing.
- Net fee and commission income should benefit year-on-year from positive trends expected for assets under management and insurance and from possible growth in fees and commissions associated with the trend for lending.
- The continuation of the favourable evolution of the general macroeconomic environment and, hopefully, the absence of further tensions in the more critical countries of the euro area could allow a result to be achieved for trading and hedging activity in line with that of the first half.
- Actions planned for 2015 allow to confirm our objective of containing operating expenses in line with those for 2014, notwithstanding the additional costs in relation to the contribution to the European Resolution Fund and the Deposit Guarantee Scheme, estimated at over €30 million for the entire year and which will be recognised in the item “other administrative expenses” once final quantification, expected before year-end, is received.
- The improvements in the macroeconomic environment and the exit from recession, recently confirmed by the principal economic research institutes, should allow loan losses to be contained at a level lower than in 2014.
